Someone to Love

By IRENE LONNEN-ERNHART

Copyright, 1949, NEA SERVICE, INC.

The Story: Jenny's marriage to Tod Duncan was unhappy because of Liz Conover who jilted Tod before his marriage and tried to get him afterwards. Liz gets Tod a job with her father's firm and gossip ensues. Jenny asks Tod for divorce and he agrees, in spite of the hardship it will work on his twin sons, Rick Morris, an old friend of Tod's who is in love with Jenny, helps Jenny get legal counsel and Max, Jenny's old boss, is going to sell out to Jenny and her old friend Nina Cushman. Jenny hopes eventually that Rick will fill the vacancy in her heart that Tod had left.

Gradually, as the spring slipped into summer, the anger and grief in Jenny's heart softened a little. The shop was doing remarkably well and took up an enormous amount of her time. Nina went East in early summer, on a buying trip, and came back elated with success at obtaining several exclusive new lines of merchandise. They were both planning the way things were going.

Rick filled what void there might have been left. The twins adored him, and Jenny found enormous comfort and pleasure in his company. He took to coming up on Saturdays, and he always had ideas for making it a memorable afternoon for the twins. Sometimes it was the amusement park on the other side of town, an exhausting round of merry-go-round and miniature train rides and cotton candy. Sometimes it was a run down to Centerville so that Mrs. Morris could see the boys. Tod came once a month to see the children, but always when Jenny was absent. Of these visits, Mrs. Drew had little information to volunteer, and Jenny's pride kept her from asking about them. She hated herself for the way she was always hoping for a glimpse of Tod, on the street perhaps, or in a theater crowd, and the way she was always listening vainly for someone to mention him. But her friends seemed to go out of their way to avoid mention of his name. It was like a vast conspiracy. They only meant to be kind, of course.

As for Tod, as far as hearing any news of Jenny was concerned, the case was much the same, except that his circle of friends, and the people who worked with him in the agency, scarcely knew her. So there was no conspiracy of silence. Several of them mentioned the divorce, of course, wondering when it would be up for trial. But their interest was centered on his relationship with Liz.

Liz was in Michigan at the Conover summer place during the hot months. She couldn't stand sticky weather. Mr. Conover chartered a plane several week-ends, and he and Tod and several couples flew up. Liz was proudly possessive. "Tod and I ought to write a book about us, oughtn't we, darling? We've had one of those dramatic romances. Poor sweet Tod—" Her slim soft hand would stroke the back of his neck while she talked. She always had her hand about his neck, a thing he couldn't stand, but of course he couldn't tell her that. "I'm afraid I treated him badly, but then you probably heard about it." And then she'd go off into the details of her elopement with Courtney, and the way she'd come back all humble and contrite, only to find he's married some little insignificant nobody, just for spite.

Once Liz said you can imagine the poor thing produced twins, right off the bat!

Tod felt his face go white and he had said quite unceremoniously to Liz, "Shut up, will you!" That was the first time they quarreled.

Liz snapped back, "You'll have to admit it was funny. Twins are always funny. And the joke was on you."

He remembered suddenly the way Jenny had looked up at him in the hospital her eyes sort of blurry and sleepy from the dope they'd given her, and said, "It was a dirty trick of me — twins — can you imagine!"

He had Liz's arm then, shaking it, stopping the bantering flow of

Telephone Expansion Plan Gets Past Congress

Washington, Oct. 19 —(AP)—A bill to expand telephone service in rural areas was past the final congressional hurdle today.

The White House yesterday announced changes which represented a compromise with the house. The bill provides financing for new and expanding phone systems along the lines of the rural electrification administration loans. The 30-year loans would not be limited in size, and would carry two and one-half per cent interest. Preference would go to existing phone companies and cooperative groups.

In its final form, the measure omitted a senate amendment banning loans to companies with more than 2,500 rural subscribers.

In color television a system is "compatible" when it will reproduce a black and white image in an ordinary receiver without extra equipment.

He saw vaguely the looks on people's faces, open-mouthed, rather shocked, as Liz said, "You're hurting me!" And he saw the dark bruises on her arm where he'd gripped it angrily. "I'm sorry," he muttered. And afterward he had said to her in the car as he took her home, "Liz, please, let's cut out the talk about Jenny and the twins. I mean, let's leave them out of it, shall we?"

She'd looked at him sharply. "What's the matter, darling? Don't tell me you're getting sensitive about Jenny?"

He swore suddenly and said in a savage tone, "Just cut it out. I'm divorcing her and leaving her. Can't you let me alone?"

"You sound as though I were making you do it against your will," he admitted tonelessly. He gripped the wheel so that his knuckles showed white and his jaw tightened. Yes, it had been what he wanted. All during the time he was married to Jenny he had thought of Liz. There had always been the thought in the back of his head somewhere that his marriage to her was only temporary. He had never stopped wanting Liz, and now he was going to get her. This vague sense of dissatisfaction he felt was entirely due to the fact that Liz and he were apart.

"I wish you'd come home, darling," he said. "It's darned lonely some with me down there and you up here in Michigan."

"Just wait until September, dear. After all, there isn't any point in my coming back in this heat when the divorce doesn't come up for trial until September. And when I do come," her soft hand stroked his cheek, "we'll be together for good."

"I guess you're right," he drove on. And he began to think of Jenny again.

Miss Anne Clarke Becomes Bride of Lawton Richardson

On Friday, evening, Sept. 23, at Life Tabernacle, in Shreveport, Miss Anne Clarke daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Clarke, became the bride of Lawton Richardson, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Richardson of Hope, Ark. Rev. Lyle G. Palmer, Associate pastor, officiated at the impressive double ring service.

A background of white gladioli, anemone fern and palms formed an attractive setting for the exchange of vows. The scene was illuminated by white cathedral tapers in branched candelabra.

Miss Jessie Nell Lou, at the organ, rendered a pre-nuptial concert and accompanied Neil F. Hargrove while he sang "Because." Miss Lou played a soft musical accompaniment while Dan Hardy and David Moore lighted the candles.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, C. H. Clarke, who gave her in marriage. Her bride dress of white slipper satin had an off shoulder neckline with leaves of seed pearls as the outline. The full gathered skirt had a chapel length train. Her fingertip veil of illusion flowed from a crown of pearls and orange blossoms. Her bridal bouquet was of white tuberoses centered with gardenias.

Miss Dorothy Young, maid of honor, carried a fan of pink carnations. Mrs. C. H. Clarke, sister-in-law of the bride, and mother of honor, wore a gown of pink tulle-on-tone satin and carried a fan of blue carnations. Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Harry Dodd of Great Bend, played a program of nuptial music and accompanied Miss O. Dean Whitacre who sang "Ave Maria" — Bach-Gounod and "I Love Thee" — Griggs. Miss Whitacre wore a green crepe gown and her flowers were white gladioli.

The candles were lighted by Miss LaVerne Pascoe of Great Bend, and Mrs. Chase Stephens, sister of the groom. They wore floor length dresses of green and gold satin, and corsages of pink gladioli.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a wedding gown of white moire tulle, fashioned along princess lines, with a sweetheart neckline, long sleeves which buttoned at the wrist with tiny covered buttons. The skirt ended in a long cathedral train. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a bandeau of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white pom mums centered with an orchid.

Claude B. Waddle, father of the groom, served as best man. Ushers were Milton Mai, of Wakeeney, and James Fleming of Tulsa, Okla.

The bride's mother chose a deep grey suit with matching accessories and a corsage of white roses. The groom's mother wore a navy blue crepe dress with matching accessories, and a corsage of red roses.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the church recreational rooms. The receiving line included Mr. and Mrs. Mai, Mr. and Mrs. Waddle, the bride and bridegroom, and members of the wedding party.

The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with a beautiful arrangement of chrysanthemums. On each end of the table was the tiered wedding cake and punch bowl. Britons Expect Margaret to Wed in Spring

London, Oct. 20. — (UP) — Princess Margaret made preparations today for what may be her last social season as the most eligible girl in the world.

The odds in Mayfair are 3 to 2 that Margaret, youngest daughter of King George VI, will announce her engagement before spring.

Just who the lucky young man will be, no one will venture. But King George has said that Margaret may marry at 20 — her 20th birthday is next Aug. 12 — and it is known that she is eager to do so.

Princess Margaret returned to London from a summer vacation in Scotland yesterday and immediately began examining mountains of invitations to parties and balls during the coming social season.

The big question in everyone's mind is which of the many eligible British bachelors Margaret will choose for her new consort.

Since she went away on vacation two of her young men, 30-year-old Marquess of Milford Haven and 27-year-old Michael Tree, have announced their engagements.

And the Earl of Westmoreland, who took Margaret out on several occasions, has since had his name linked with that of Sharmar Douglas, blonde daughter of American Ambassador Lewis Douglas.

There are still about a score of eligible young men willing to date King George's younger daughter, however. Chief among them are the Marquess of Blandford and Lord Edward Montagu of Beaulieu.

But army duties and their country estates keep a number of these titled suitors away from Buckingham palace for weeks at a time.

Britons take it for granted that Margaret will soon be adding new names to her engagement book.

Transmitter Seized in Prison

Houston, Tex., Oct. 20. — (AP) — Three clandestine radio transmitters operated by a prisoner have been seized at the Mississippi penitentiary at Parchman, Miss.

Joe McKinney, federal communications commission regional manager, said they were operated by Frank Moody, serving 50 years for armed robbery.

He said Moody had been making illicit daily broadcasts from the prison for four years.

Here is the story McKinney told the Houston Post:

For the past six years Moody had been using the transmitters in a campaign to obtain an indefinite suspension of sentence from Mississippi Gov. Fielding Wright.

Receiving the broadcasts were persons at Pascagoula and Bacalluna, Miss. They in turn relayed the information to Moody's wife to help her plea for Moody's release.

Early in October two amateur radio operators, one in Arkansas and one in Tennessee, advised the federal communications commission in Washington of strange broadcasts.

By use of long range direction-finders FCC agents localized the unlicensed broadcasts to a 100 mile area. Mobile direction finders went into the Parchman area and localized the section from which the broadcasts were originating.

Sunday federal men entered the trustees' cage at Parchman. Moody was summoned.

"He saw the game was up," McKinney said, "grinned, and took us to his cot. After we had acquired the two transmitters there he took us to the little four by six guardhouse and pointed out the other one."

Prison Supt. Marvin Wiggins told the Houston Post:

"We had no idea whatever of Moody's radio activities until the federal men tipped us off three weeks ago."

The FCC men had been monitoring Moody's daily broadcasts for three weeks. He went on the air each morning at 5 o'clock and talked steadily to Pascagoula or Bacalluna until 7:30 a. m. His transmitter in the guardhouse enabled him to continue his broadcasts during his hours off duty there, McKinney said.

As a trustee, Moody, now only 29, although he had been a prisoner for 10 years for his last offense has many privileges. He was permitted to take correspondence courses in radio and became the prison radio mechanic and repairman.

"He's a mighty smart fellow," Wiggins said. "We let him have various radio parts as elements of his training and he certainly made the most of them."

The penalty for unlicensed broadcasting is a maximum fine of $10,000 and two years imprisonment.

Wiring in older automobiles should be checked periodically to avoid short circuits and possible fire.

Engineers Study White River Dam Project

Little Rock, Oct. 19. — (AP) — The U. S. engineers today were investigating a report that a dam across the White river near Batesville, Ark., would destroy much of the state's limestone deposits.

A group of industrialists and mining experts made the report here yesterday at a meeting with representatives of the Little Rock district engineers' office.

The meeting was called by the Arkansas resources and development commission.

Construction of the Wolf Bayou dam near Batesville is one of several planned in the multi-million dollar White river development program.

E. O. Baxter, manager of the Batesville White Lime Co. asked that the engineers delay submitted recommendations to the chief of U. S. engineers on the project.

He suggested that a report show that much of the state's limestone deposits would be lost by flooding the area near Batesville.

Further study of the problem has been indicated by the district engineer.

Russia Wrong Acheson Affirms

Washington, Oct. 19 —(AP)— Secretary of State Acheson said today Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky is wrong in claiming that U. N. security council would be illegal and contrary to a gentlemen's agreement.

Acheson told a news conference that as an Eastern European, Slav communist state, Yugoslavia appears to be fully qualified for a council seat, except that— from Russia's point of view — it presently lacks complete domination by the Kremlin.

Vishinsky said that what he called Anglo-American backing for Yugoslavia as a small nation, Eastern European member of the council would be illegal, would violate a gentlemen's agreement and would have "painful effects" on United Nations affairs.

Acheson said he thought that Vishinsky had implied that there was an understanding—evidently among the great powers—that he would be able to name a member of the council. Acheson asserted that was an agreement that he had never heard of.

In response to a question, he said that there had been a kind of practice of selecting the small nation members of the council on a regional basis and more or less by agreement among the nations in each region. The council has 11 members in all — five are the so-called great powers which hold their seats permanently and six are elected every two years.

He made it plain that the United States still supports Yugoslavia's candidacy, despite Vishinsky's blast.

Continuance Not Likely in Training School Trial

Benton, Oct. 19 —(AP)— Trial for one of two women charged with mistreating inmates at the Arkansas Girls Training school was to open in Saline County Circuit court today.

Scheduled to face a 12-man jury was Mrs. Carrie Toland, former matron at the school. Former superintendent Mrs. Fanny Dunaway Goodman, also has been indicted for allegedly mistreating the young inmates. But it was not known whether she will go on trial with Mrs. Toland.

Prosecutor W. H. McClellan said he understood that Mrs. Goodman would ask that she have a separate trial.

We're Sure That Millions of Farmers and Consumers Feel Just as You Do!

One of the wonderful things about Americans is their great sense of fair play. Ever since the anti-trust lawyers announced their intention of putting A&P out of business, tremendous numbers of people like Mr. & Mrs. N. M. Davies of Congers, New York, have deluged us with letters, wires and phone calls. These people are telling us, as Mr. & Mrs. Davies do in the following letter, why they like A&P and why they don't want to see this company destroyed.

Gentlemen:

We have been distressed by the possibility that the A. and P. stores, because of unfair accusations, may cease to exist. I wonder if you will see that our letter reaches the proper source, if there is one.

We are farmers, as you know, and not only sell our products, but buy necessary food from local A. and P. stores. We deliver farm produce, daily, to approximately eighteen stores in nearby villages. This includes two A. and P. markets, whose managers very wisely buy on-the-spot, thus saving deterioration due to excess handling, transportation and longer time from the farm to store. Our price to sixteen stores is the same as we get from the two A. and P. stores.

We wondered whether the low prices we see all the time in A. and P. stores might mean that sales people were underpaid. Evidently not, for we have noticed that the same employees stay on year after year, and we know high-school students in our town who have started at the bottom with A. and P. and risen to responsible positions.

Then what is this all about, if the consumers, the salespeople, those who manufacture your brands, the truckmen, the laborers and the farmers are ALL satisfied?

We believe the answer is simple. The A. and P. has developed an organization whose efficiency should be an example to all stores handling food. If this were so, independent grocers could well expect larger profits. The solution is not in destroying something that has taken years to build, but in encouraging all merchants to still further improve the efficiency of their operations.

Very sincerely,

Niles M. Davies
Lila Davies

For 90 years this company has tried to build a sound business on the basis of giving consumers more good food for their money and giving farmers better markets for their products.

It is heartening to know that the public approves of the job we have done . . . to know that our policy of fair, honest dealing has won us the friendship of millions of consumers and farmers.

We will always be grateful to all our good friends who have offered us their help.

We are proud to live in a country where such things can happen.

Search Continues for Robbers Who Got $16,000

Berryville, Oct. 20 —(P)— The search for three stickup men and $16,000 in cash continued today. Arkansas state troopers aided by county officers searched backroads and main highways in this rugged mountain section for a black 1949 car the men used to make their getaway.

Kelly Miller, one of the owners of the Al G. Kelly-Miller Bros. circus, reported he and his wife were bound by three men who robbed him of the show's payroll. The men took three diamond rings from his wife.

going over by Gen. Omar Bradley, head new criticism today.

The usually mild-spoken Bradley, war hero and chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, blasted away bitterly at the navy yesterday for not accepting the decisions of top military authority established under the unification law.

He used acid language, although in calm tones, in speaking of "open rebellion" and declaring that the public airing of navy grievances had done "infinite harm" to national security.

Bradley was to be followed before the house armed services committee (S. a. m. CST) by two other leading military figures — General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, and Gen. J. Lawton Collins, army chief of staff.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) has called Gen. George C. Marshall, wartime chief of staff, and Gen. Mark Clark, chief of army ground forces, for tomorrow. He expects the committee to conclude on Thursday with former President Herbert Hoover — if he wishes to be heard — and Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal.

Bradley returned a point-by-point answer to navy charges yesterday, speaking with an air of cold anger. A sober committee listened in complete silence.

It was one of the strongest public statements ever issued by the mild-mannered general.

He referred scathingly to "self-appointed" martyrs, and he called for "some retraction" of navy insinuations and allegations against the joint chiefs of staff.

And, blinding off his words grimly, he called on the armed services to stop bickering and get on with the job at hand — "a very big and very important job."

In summing up his 51-page statement, he left no doubt where he stood:

"This is no time for fancy dances who won't hit the line with all they have on every play, unless they can call the signals. Each player on this team — whether he shines in the spotlight of the backfield or eats dirt in the line — must be an all-American."

"I believe that the public hearings of the armed services officers who will not accept the decisions of the authorities established by law, and charges as to our poor state of preparedness, have done infinite harm to our national defense, our position of leadership in world affairs, the position of our national policy, and the confidence of the people in their government."

DOROTHY DIX

Education and Marriage

Dear Miss Dix: Do you think a college education tends to decrease a girl's chance of marriage? My observation shows that boys shy away from the college graduate in many cases. I know many fine, intelligent, good-looking girls with college educations who never had a date. It seems to me that a college education should be an asset to marriage.

Answer: Undoubtedly a college education is an asset to marriage because the more a woman knows and the broader-minded, she is, the better fitted she is to make a good wife. Every woman who has a husband to get along with, a house to run, dinner to cook, a baby to rear, needs all that a college can teach her of biology and psychology and chemistry and finance.

There are many reasons why a well-educated woman makes a better wife than an illiterate one. To begin with, she is, as a general thing, easier to get along with and is more interesting to live with because she has a wider outlook on life and has been trained to see both sides of a subject. Then she is more interesting to live with because she reads and thinks and has something entertaining to talk about. And finally, no matter how old she gets to be, how much she loses her complexion, she never gets to be as ugly as an ignorant woman is.

I have traveled much in countries in which only a few of the higher-up women are educated, and as I looked at the dull, stupid, sodden faces of the middle-aged and old women, without one day of intelligence to light them up, I thought that it paid to educate women just to make them easier on the eyes, if for no other reason.

No women are so set in their ways and so impossible to manage as ignorant women. Nor are any women such naggers as they who never read or think and who, having no new ideas, are driven to harping continually on the same subject. So for every reason the college-bred woman is the best matrimonial bet, but unfortunately not all men are wise enough to know this, and it is true that statistics show that a college education is no help toward getting a husband.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am one of three girls all employed and making good salaries. We are the support of our mother. I personally have been working for fifteen years, during which time I have handed over my pay envelope to my mother without opening it and have received only a small allowance out of it. The time has come now when I would like to make arrangements to get married, but cannot do so as I have not the money to increase my allowance for this purpose, but she has refused to do so. What shall I do?

Answer: If you have the backbone of a fishing worm, you will turn, and refuse to turn over your salary to your greedy mother. After all, the matter is in your own hands, as she has no way of getting hold of your money unless you give it to her. Of course, sisters should agree upon what is a fair amount and give it to her, but you are foolish to turn over your entire earnings to her and just have the pittance she chooses to give you.

Mothers take a queer attitude toward their daughters' earnings. Nearly always they seem to think that all the money their daughters make belongs to them by rights. The worker is entitled to her wage. Even if it is necessary to spend every cent of it on the support of the family, handle your own money and, at least, have the satisfaction of giving it yourself.

Dear Miss Dix: What stand should a husband take who has a philandering wife? We were married five years, have two sons, and I devoted all of my time to work and trying to make a success of our domestic life, but my wife was not content with just my love. Now we are separated. Our children separated from their father, and their mother and even parted from each other. What stand should a father take in this case?

Answer: If your wife is an actually immoral woman, then you had best let her go for your own and the children's sake. But there are many women who are not really bad at heart, who just philander because they are weak and vain and crave the admiration of men. If your wife is one of these it might be happiest for you and the forlorn little kiddies, for you to forgive and forget.

Man Admits Starting Rooming House Blaze

Kansas City, Oct. 20 —(P)— An unemployed railroad worker signed a statement yesterday saying he started a fatal rooming house fire because his landlady angered him.

Seven persons died in the fire. Police Lt. Charles Welch said 43-year-old Alva O. Merritt made an eight-page statement in which he said he threw a lighted match into a box of rubbish to start the blaze.

The statement quoted him as saying Mrs. Ed. Bayse, owner of the house, chided him for drinking and keeping company with a girl friend and that it irritated him.

The fire occurred September 30. Many occupants of the two-story building were old age pensioners. Merritt said he moved out of the house two days before the fire.

No formal charges have been filed. Police reported Merritt had a record of 64 previous arrests.

Passengers Like Kind of Service

Little Rock, Oct. 20 —(P)— Passengers who daily ride the Fort Smith interurban line apparently like the kind of personal service they get.

The drivers often hook their horns to wake late sleepers, wait for you if you happen to be a trifle late, or drop a note at a neighbor's house.

It's service like that which makes the bus line a community affair.

This was the gist of testimony of a witness who appeared before the Arkansas Public Service commission yesterday.

The commission conducted a hearing on the line's request to amend its current operating permit.

Operators asked that their buses be allowed to carry passengers about a U. S. mail contract be lost. The permit provides that the line cannot haul passengers unless it delivers mail. Failure to keep the mail contract would deprive them of serving their customers.

One of the witnesses appearing before the commission was Mrs. Joe Rodrick, grocery store operator of Wicherville, Ark.

She told the commission that the streamlined, air-conditioned buses operated by other lines in the Fort Smith-Hartford-Wicherville-Mansfield area were fine but they didn't measure up to the ancient, squeaky vehicles owned by interurban.

She explained that one time a driver for the line held up the bus so a passenger could deposit money in a Fort Smith bank before closing time.

Most of the interurban buses aren't as comfortable as rival company vehicles, she said, but interurban is the only line which will carry a message to a sick friend or stop to help a stalled motorist.

"It's just a community affair," she declared.

The commission took the matter under advisement.

Crown coaches and Continental Central lines are opposing the change on ground that the two companies now provide adequate service for folks in the area.
